Agency/Department: American Psychological Association; Minority Fellowship Program

Summary: This fellowship was created to support the training of students who have primary interests in research related to substance abuse and its relationship to the mental health or the psychological well being of ethnic minorities. In addition, applicants must have primary career goals of becoming independent research scientists or psychologists specializing in this area who work primarily in university settings. The SAR fellowship is a sub-specialty under the MFP Mental Health Research program. The goals are to support doctoral training in substance abuse research and prevention through: (1) increasing the number of psychologists with expertise in SAR research and prevention related to ethnic minority populations; (2) increasing the number of under-represented minorities in the area of SAR research and prevention related to ethnic minority populations; and (3) increasing the general knowledge and research of issues related to ethnic minority mental health and treatment.
